

I can...

Visit Lightscape

I am going to Lightscape at the Chicago Botanic Garden.

This is an outdoor light show that happens at night from November to January. It might be cold, rainy, or snowy when I visit Lightscape.

I will walk under the lighted arch to enter.

I'll be sure to wear warm layers so that I will be comfortable the whole visit. I can wear a hat, gloves, a coat, and scarf if it is cold or bring an umbrella or raincoat if it is raining.

Many people visit Lightscape each year. On Sensory Friendly Night there will be less visitors.

The other visitors may be gathered at the entrance as we arrive. My group will have our tickets scanned at the booth before entering.

There is one path for Lightscape. I will follow the path and stay with my group.

Sometimes we may have to wait our turn.
I will wait my turn with my group.

At Lightscape, there will be lot of different lights to see, some of which may move.

I can bring my own sunglasses to wear if the lights are too bright, or I can cover my eyes.

Many of the light displays also have different music playing. This music will be on reduced sound.

I can cover my ears, wear earmuffs, or bring headphones from home to wear if the volume is too loud.

Some lights dangle down over the path for guests to walk under.

The lights are high up, keeping them safely out of reach.

Along the way, I can stop with my group to take pictures.

If I need to leave the Lightscape path, I can tell someone in my group so we can talk to a Chicago Botanic Garden staff member to find an exit.

Chicago Botanic Garden staff wear reflective vests and have lights and radios so we can find them.

When I reach the end of the Lightscape path, it will be time to go home. We'll find our car in the parking lot and say goodbye!

I had so much fun at Lightscape!
